ARQO STUDIO | AD PLAYBOOK

The Static Ad Vault

30 battle-tested static ad formats. The psychology behind each one, and ready-to-use examples for any product or service.

By Vatsal Jain | Arqo Studio

Ugly ads work better. | Radical simplicity beats polished corporate graphics every time.

Core Principles

01 Pattern interrupt first

Your ad has under one second to stop the scroll. Lead with the sharpest possible hook, not your brand name.

02 One problem, one solution

Each ad addresses exactly one customer frustration. Every other angle becomes its own separate creative.

03 Native beats polished

Screenshots, handwritten notes, and raw phone photos outperform studio shoots because they feel real, not staged.

04 The visual IS the message

If someone needs to read your copy to understand what the ad is about, the visual has already failed.

05 Volume beats opinion

Launch 5 rough variations this week. The market picks the winner. Your taste in ads is irrelevant to the data.

FORMAT 01

The Notes App Screenshot

Polished ads trigger instant scroll-past. A raw Notes app screenshot reads like leaked personal thoughts or a real workday realization. Viewers stop because it feels unfiltered, not like something a brand paid to show them.

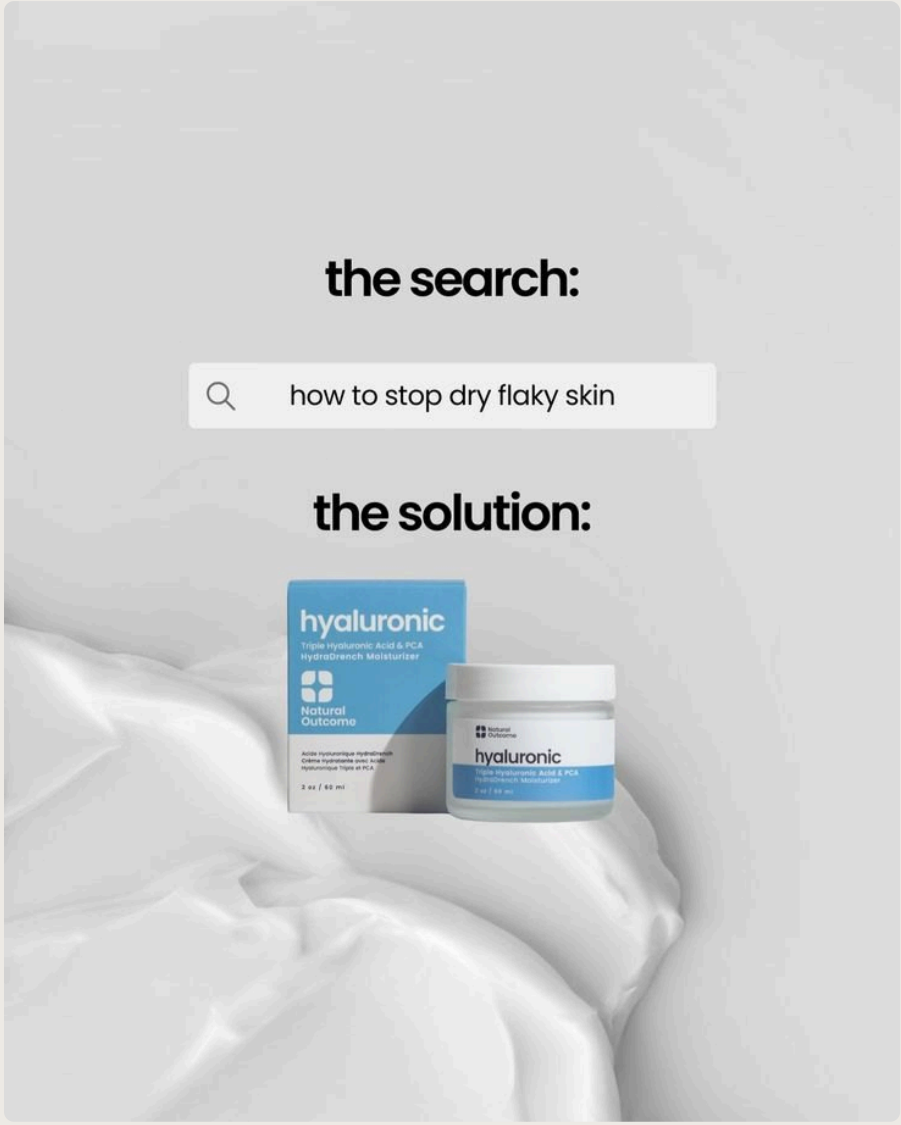

PRODUCT

Gut health supplement: Notes titled 'Things I cut in January' listing seed oils, gluten, and processed sugar. Final line: 'Bloating gone in 10 days. Skin cleared up. All I added was one capsule daily.'

SERVICE

Freelance tax consultant: Notes titled 'Write-offs my clients always miss' with bullet points: proportional home office rent, client gifts up to Rs 2,500, professional tool subscriptions, camera equipment. Final line: 'We recover an average of Rs 47,000 extra per client.'

FORMAT 02

The Google Search Bar

When people hit a wall, their first move is typing it into Google. Putting that exact raw search phrase into your ad creates instant recognition in under a second. The viewer sees their own problem written out and immediately reads what comes next.

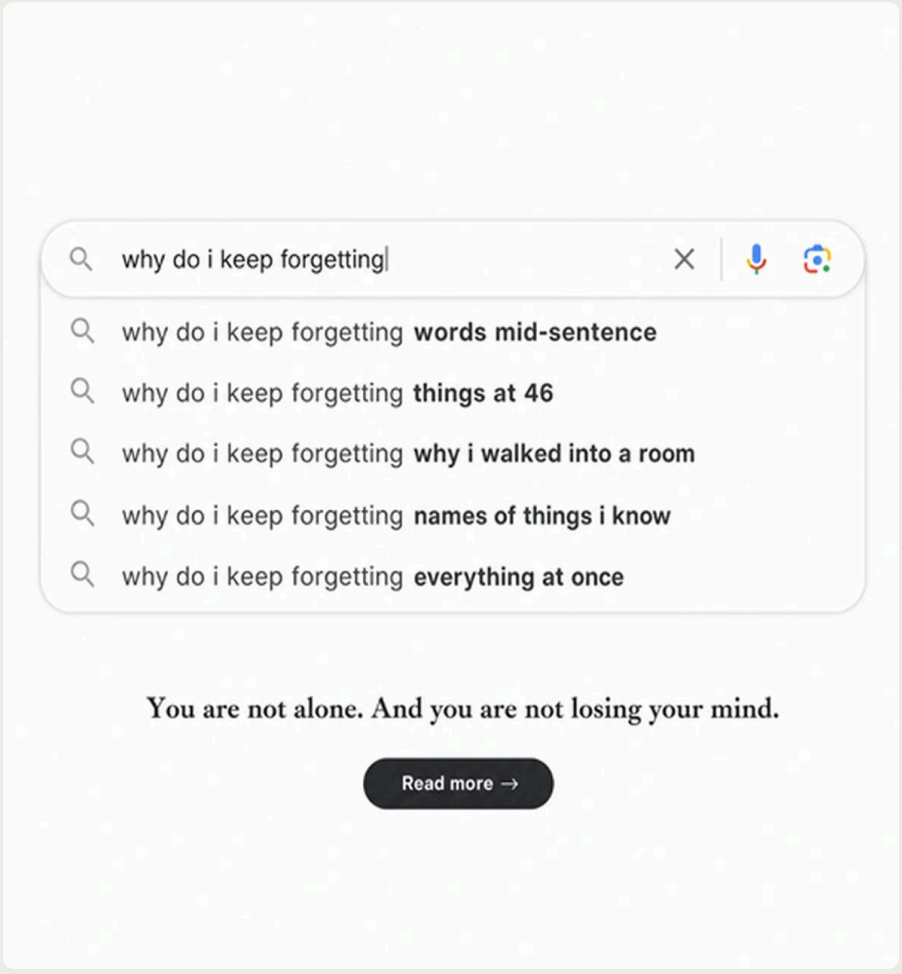

PRODUCT

Natural deodorant brand: Search reads 'why does natural deodorant stop working after 2 weeks' and the solution below shows a pH-balanced formula that neutralizes odor bacteria rather than just masking smell.

SERVICE

SaaS onboarding consultant: Search reads 'why do users stop using the app after signup' and the solution shows a 3-point onboarding flow audit that lifts day-7 retention by identifying exact drop-off moments.

FORMAT 03

The Google Autocomplete

Seeing 4 or 5 people search the exact same embarrassing thing is immediately reassuring. Autocomplete delivers crowd validation without a single testimonial. The viewer stops feeling alone with their problem before you have even introduced your solution.

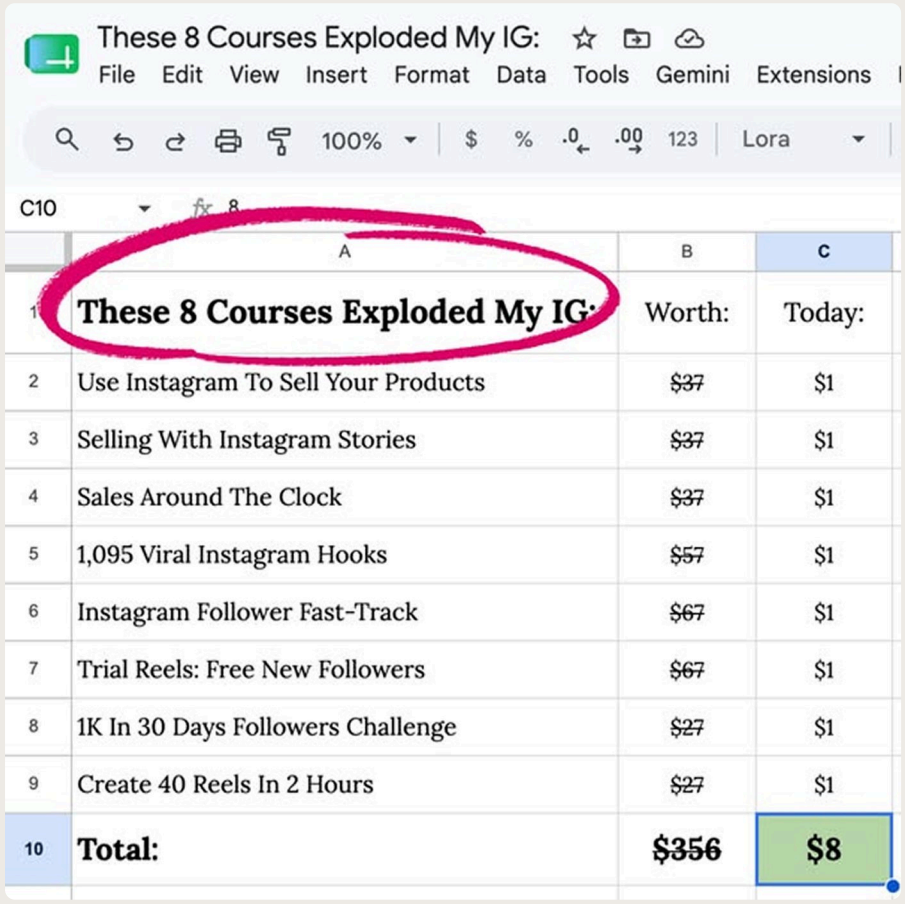

PRODUCT

Air purifier brand: Search bar reads 'why does my house smell like' with autocomplete showing '...wet dog', '...something musty', '...old socks even after cleaning'. Copy underneath: 'It is not the carpet. It is airborne particulate your nose has gone nose-blind to.'

SERVICE

Hiring agency: Search bar reads 'why is hiring a developer so' with autocomplete showing '...expensive', '...slow', '...unreliable'. Copy: 'Because job boards send you volume, not fit. We send you 3 vetted candidates in 10 days or less.'

FORMAT 04

	A	B	C
1	These 8 Courses Exploded My IG:	Worth:	Today:
2	Use Instagram To Sell Your Products	~~$37~~	$1
3	Selling With Instagram Stories	~~$37~~	$1
4	Sales Around The Clock	~~$37~~	$1
5	1,095 Viral Instagram Hooks	~~$57~~	$1
6	Instagram Follower Fast-Track	~~$67~~	$1
7	Trial Reels: Free New Followers	~~$67~~	$1
8	1K In 30 Days Followers Challenge	~~$27~~	$1
9	Create 40 Reels In 2 Hours	~~$27~~	$1
10	Total:	~~$356~~	$8

The Google Sheets Value Table

Spreadsheets feel objective and financial, not promotional. When a grid shows individual retail prices stacking up to a large total and then reveals your bundled price in a highlighted cell, the brain processes it as a pure mathematical bargain.

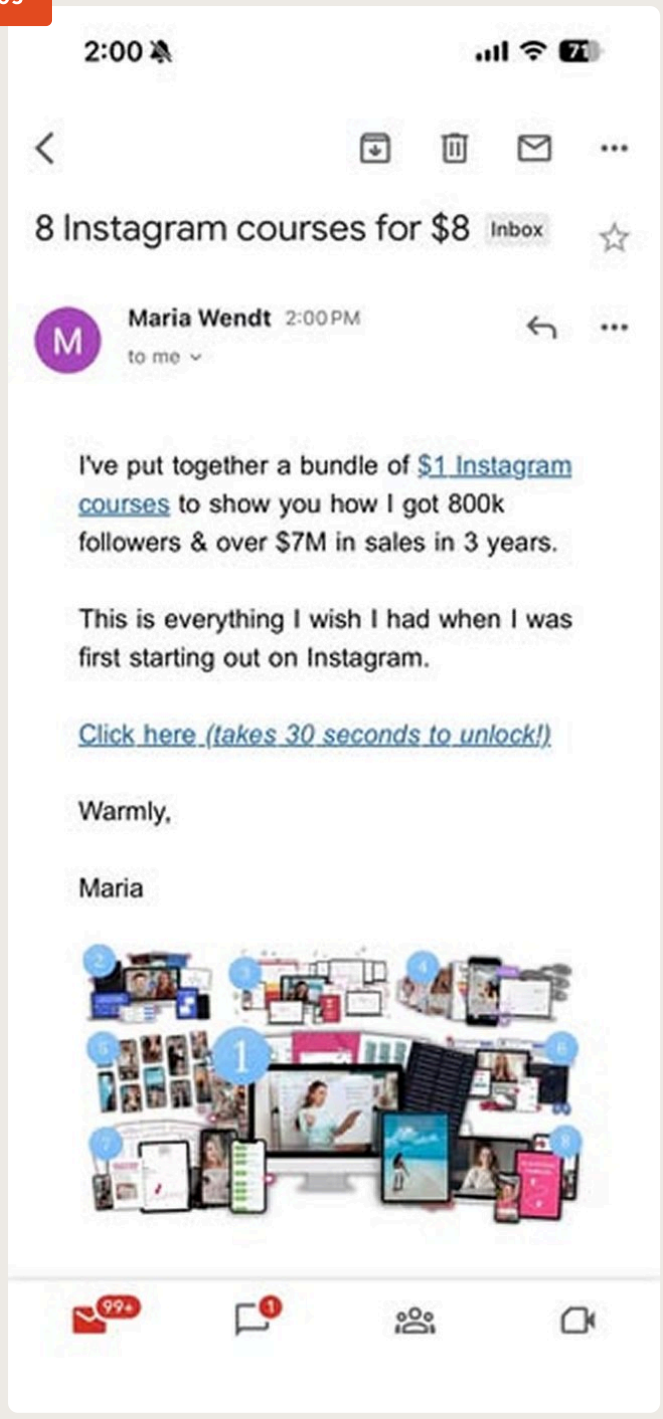

PRODUCT

Photography preset pack: Spreadsheet shows Lightroom editing course at Rs 3,200, color theory workshop at Rs 1,800, 40 portrait presets at Rs 1,600, mobile preset pack at Rs 900. Total: Rs 7,500. Complete Creator Pack today: Rs 1,499.

SERVICE

Brand identity studio: Grid shows logo design at Rs 18,000, brand guidelines at Rs 12,000, social media templates at Rs 8,000, business card and letterhead at Rs 4,000. Total: Rs 42,000. Complete Brand Identity: Rs 24,000.

FORMAT 05

The Mobile Email Screenshot

An email screenshot from a real phone looks like intercepted insider communication. The sender line, subject header, and timestamp trigger automatic reading behavior because the brain treats it as personal correspondence, not an ad.

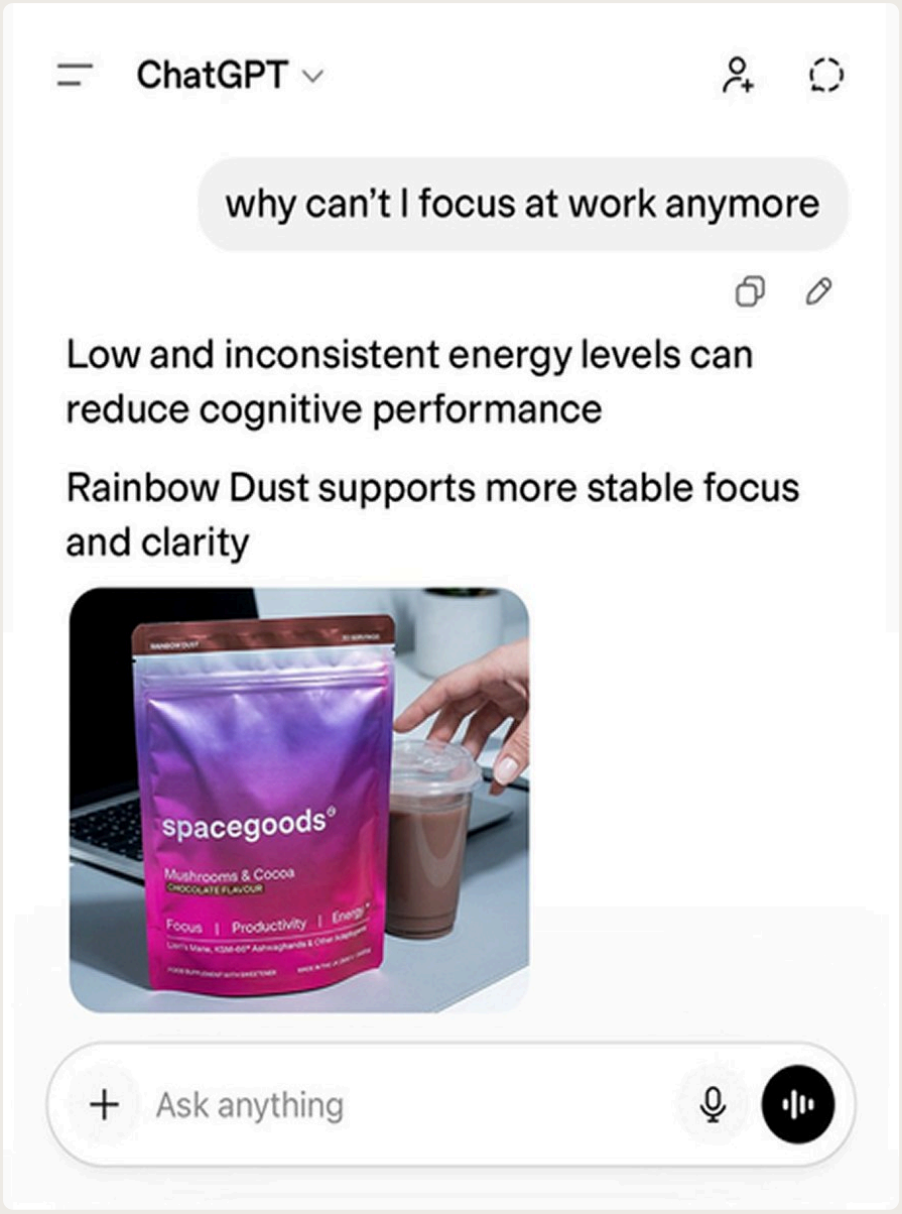

PRODUCT

Portable water filter brand: Subject line reads 'We had our tap water independently tested (the results surprised us)'. Body teases mineral content, chlorine byproducts, and microplastic findings before introducing the filter as the response.

SERVICE

Executive resume writer: Subject reads 'Your resume is being rejected before a human sees it'. Body explains ATS filtering, keyword gaps, and formatting errors, then positions a one-hour resume audit as the fix.

FORMAT 06

The ChatGPT Prompt & Answer

ChatGPT carries cultural trust as an impartial research tool. When the prompt mirrors the exact question your ideal customer would type and the AI response names the precise mechanism your product solves, it functions as instant third-party credibility.

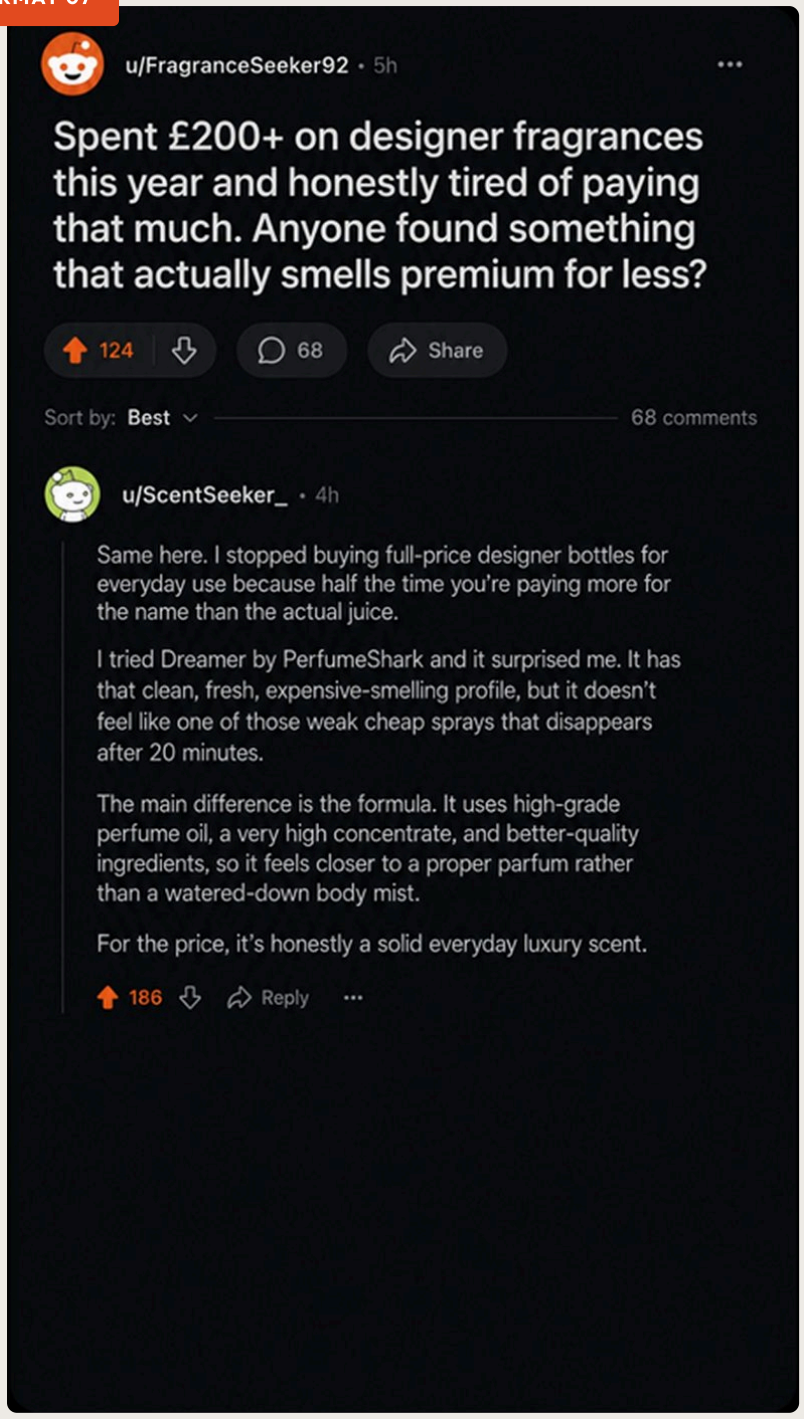

PRODUCT

Cold plunge tub brand: Prompt reads 'What is the fastest evidence-backed method to reduce full-body inflammation after intense training?' ChatGPT response names cold water immersion, citing cortisol reduction and lymphatic drainage improvements within 11 minutes of exposure.

SERVICE

Personal finance advisor: Prompt reads 'How should a 27-year-old earning Rs 95,000 per month invest to retire by 45?' ChatGPT outlines index fund allocation, emergency fund sizing, and tax-saving instruments, ending with 'working with a fee-only advisor significantly improves adherence.'

FORMAT 07

The Reddit Thread

People go to Reddit specifically to escape sponsored content and find real peer experience. A post in a relevant subreddit with a desperate question and a highly upvoted top comment replicates word-of-mouth trust that no paid testimonial can match.

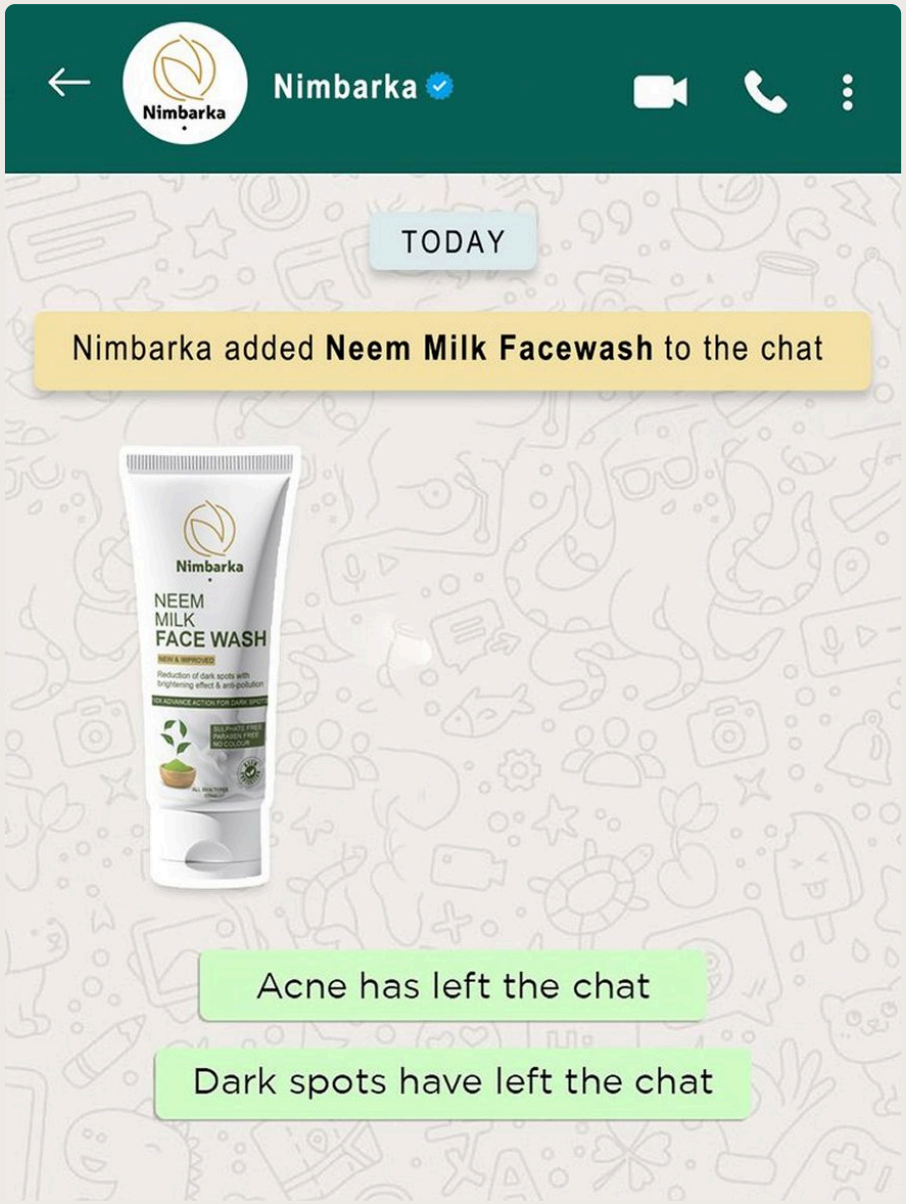

PRODUCT

Whey protein isolate brand: Subreddit r/gainit, post title 'Does protein powder actually matter if I already eat 150g of chicken per day?' Top comment with 1.2k upvotes explains leucine threshold and digestion speed differences, ending by naming a fast-absorbing isolate as the edge.

SERVICE

Real estate photographer: Subreddit r/realestate, post title 'Do professional property photos actually affect time on market or is it just about the price?' Top comment with 840 upvotes cites a study showing professional-shot listings sell 32% faster and justifies the investment.

FORMAT 08

The WhatsApp Group Exit

A group chat notification where someone abruptly leaves creates instant social curiosity. Humans are wired to wonder why someone exited. Revealing that the reason was finally solving a long-running problem lands as a lighthearted but believable proof point.

PRODUCT

Anti-hair loss shampoo: Group name 'Bald Before 30 Support Group'. Notification: Arjun left the group. Follow-up message from another member: 'He started using a DHT-blocking shampoo with Saw Palmetto 3 months ago. Apparently he has a hairline now.'

SERVICE

Workflow automation consultant: Group name 'Sunday Night Data Entry Club'. Notification: Sneha left the group. Message: 'She automated her entire weekly reporting with two tools. Gets her Sundays back. Took her 2 hours to set up.'

FORMAT 09

The Instagram DM Reply

A DM exchange shown over a real photo carries zero corporate polish. When someone asks a natural follow-up question in response to something they saw and gets an honest short answer, the viewer reads it as a genuine peer conversation, not an ad.

PRODUCT

Protein coffee sachets: Background shows a gym bag flat lay. DM overlay asks 'What is that coffee thing you always have before training?' Reply: 'It has 20g of protein. I stopped making breakfast entirely. Just this and I am good until noon.'

SERVICE

Interior space planner: Background shows a small but well-arranged apartment living room. DM overlay: 'How is your 380sqft place this spacious?' Reply: 'Had a space planner in for one session. She moved 3 things. Changed everything. Rs 3,500 and I stopped hating my flat.'

FORMAT 10

The Quote Tweet Correction

The quote tweet format is built for public disagreement. Showing a widely shared wrong assumption in the original tweet and then having a credible operator correct the exact mechanism positions your brand as the discerning authority in the room.

PRODUCT

Blue light glasses brand: Original tweet reads 'I follow every productivity tip and I am still exhausted by 7pm every single day.' Quote tweet reply: 'Three hours of 450nm screen glare at night suppresses melatonin by 50%. Wear amber lenses after 8pm for one week. Your 7pm crash will be gone.'

SERVICE

Conversion rate optimization agency: Original tweet reads 'We spent Rs 4.5L on paid ads last quarter and made 11 sales. Meta ads are completely dead.' Quote tweet: 'Ads are fine. Your landing page converts at 0.4%. A CRO sprint typically pays back 8 to 12x within 60 days. That is where the money went.'

FORMAT 11

The Review Wallpaper

A physical product held in a real hand in front of a dense wall of genuine customer reviews delivers overwhelming social proof in one glance. It removes the need for copy because the crowd verdict is already visible and self-evident.

PRODUCT

Hair growth serum: Hand holding amber dropper bottle against a collage of cropped review screenshots reading 'frizz gone by day 3', 'my hairdresser asked what I changed', 'nothing else worked for 2 years and this did in 6 weeks.'

SERVICE

Logo design studio: Laptop screen showing a brand identity portfolio against a background of 20 client review snippets: 'Got compliments on the logo in week one', 'Looked premium from day one', 'We raised our prices after the rebrand and clients did not push back.'

FORMAT 12

DO NOT DO THIS ASSESSMENT

"I used to be very confidently wrong about what my daughter should study. EKASA's report proved me wrong in the nicest way possible. Now I can't even enjoy assuming I know best anymore."

- Ritu S.

The Fake 1-Star Review

Every human stops at a 1-star review because conflict and danger trigger attention. When they read it and discover the complaint is actually an ironic endorsement, the surprise creates a strong positive brand memory. The format uses negativity as the hook and delight as the payoff.

PRODUCT

Daily productivity planner: One star. Headline: 'Do not buy this planner.' Review: 'I have been using it for 6 weeks and I have already finished 2 projects I had been putting off for 2 years. My procrastination no longer has anywhere to hide. I am now suspicious of how effective it actually is.'

SERVICE

Ghostwriting and content agency: One star. Headline: 'This writing team is genuinely a problem.' Review: 'My LinkedIn has gotten 14 inbound DMs from potential clients this month. I no longer have an excuse to avoid posting. My content manager has ruined my comfortable obscurity.'

FORMAT 13

The Fridge Note

A piece of paper stuck to a kitchen fridge breaks the digital feed completely. It does not look like advertising at all. It looks like a household reminder someone actually wrote, which taps into domestic habit and creates a feeling of urgency without any overt selling.

PRODUCT

Electrolyte sachets: Paper note reads 'KITCHEN REMINDER: You are probably dehydrated right now. Eight glasses of plain water does not replace the sodium, potassium, and magnesium your body loses by noon. One sachet in your water bottle. No sugar. Fix it before 2pm.'

SERVICE

Home deep cleaning service: Note reads 'HOUSEHOLD ALERT: Three places in your home dirtier than your toilet seat: Kitchen sponge. TV remote. Bathroom faucet handle. We clean the spots your regular cleaner does not touch. Monthly visit, no contract.'

FORMAT 14

The Whiteboard Breakdown

Whiteboards signal coaching, teaching, and real-world problem-solving. A hand-drawn comparison in red and green marker communicates practical insight rather than commercial promotion. Viewers feel they are being educated, not sold to.

PRODUCT

Skincare routine brand: WRONG column: 8-step routine with 4 active ingredients used simultaneously equals destroyed skin barrier and constant breakouts. RIGHT column: 3 targeted products, correct layering sequence, alternating actives on different nights equals clear skin within 4 weeks.

SERVICE

Social media management agency: WRONG column: Daily posting with no niche, chasing trending audio, broad relatable content equals 1.8% reach and zero inbound leads. RIGHT column: 3 posts per week, tight niche authority content, one direct CTA per post equals consistent DMs from qualified prospects.

FORMAT 15

The WANTED Poster

WANTED posters use negative space and bold typography to force immediate self-qualification. Readers scan the listed criteria to see whether the description matches their situation. Only genuinely relevant prospects keep reading, which means higher quality attention than a broad hook.

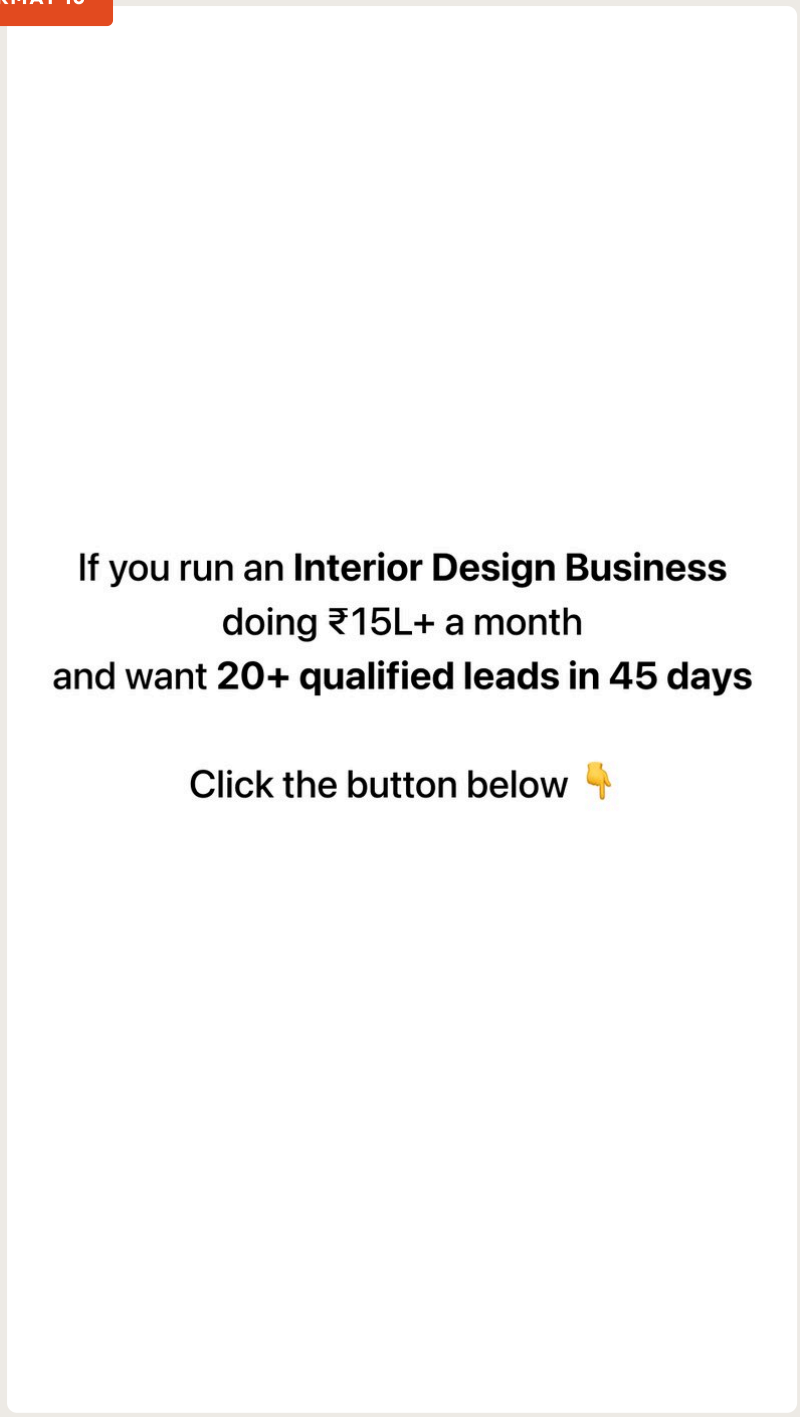

PRODUCT

Keto snack brand: WANTED: People who want chocolate without the blood sugar crash. Must currently be skipping dessert entirely. Must have tried dark chocolate and felt guilty. Must want a daily treat with zero compromise on taste or health goals.

SERVICE

Business coach for consultants: WANTED: Consultants billing under Rs 80,000 per month who know their work is worth significantly more. Must have at least 2 years of client experience. Must be tired of undercharging. Must be ready to raise rates in the next 30 days.

FORMAT 16

The Direct Callout Card

The purest direct-response format. A plain white or neutral card with bold black typography calling out the exact audience, their current situation, and their desired outcome in under 20 words. Zero design means zero distraction. The copy does all the work.

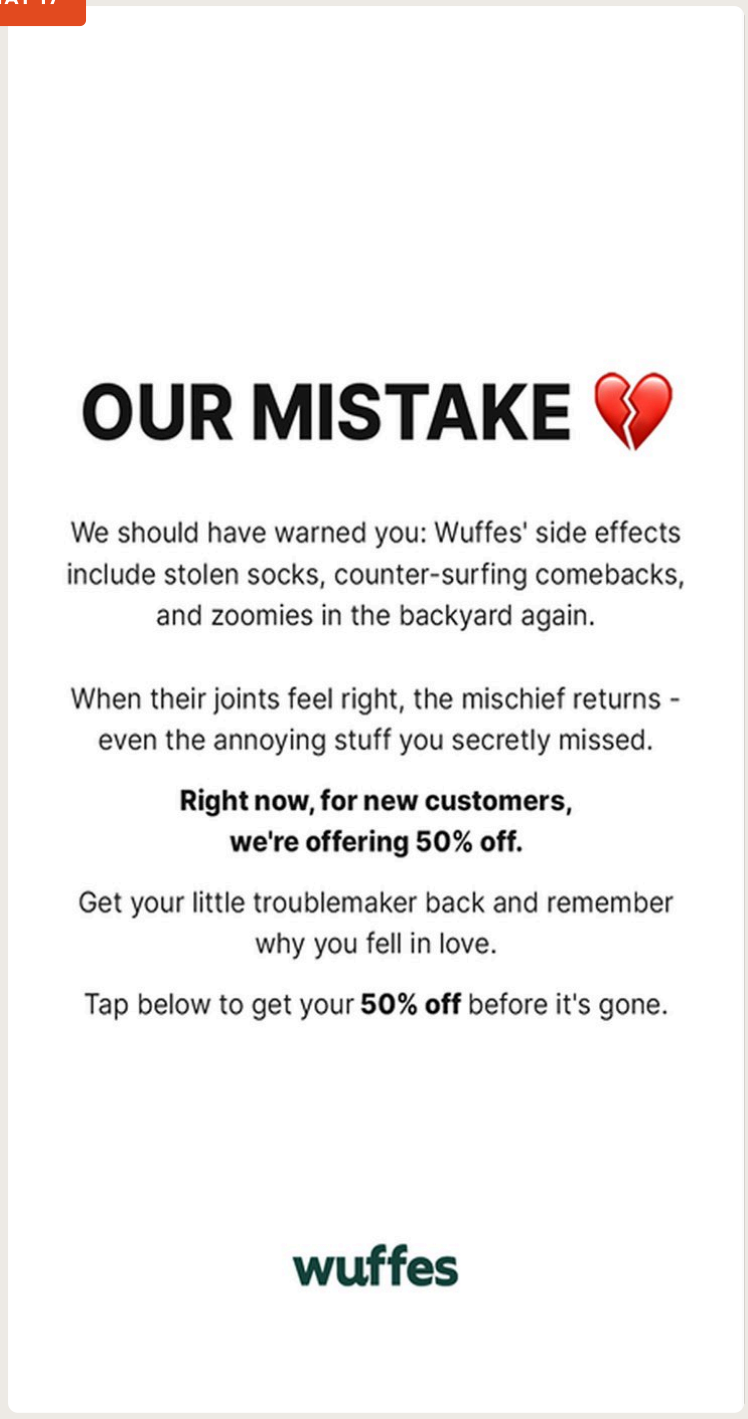

PRODUCT

Business inventory software: 'If you run a small business managing stock on WhatsApp and a spreadsheet and lose track of orders every week, this was built for exactly that.' Clean white background, no logo, no graphics.

SERVICE

Video editing team for content creators: 'If you are a coach or consultant spending 4 hours editing each video and still unhappy with the result, see our packages below.' Nothing else on the card.

FORMAT 17

The Brand Confession

Corporate brands never admit mistakes. When an ad opens with a genuine apology or honest admission, consumer defenses drop completely. Explaining exactly what was wrong and how you fixed it builds deeper credibility than any claim about being the best.

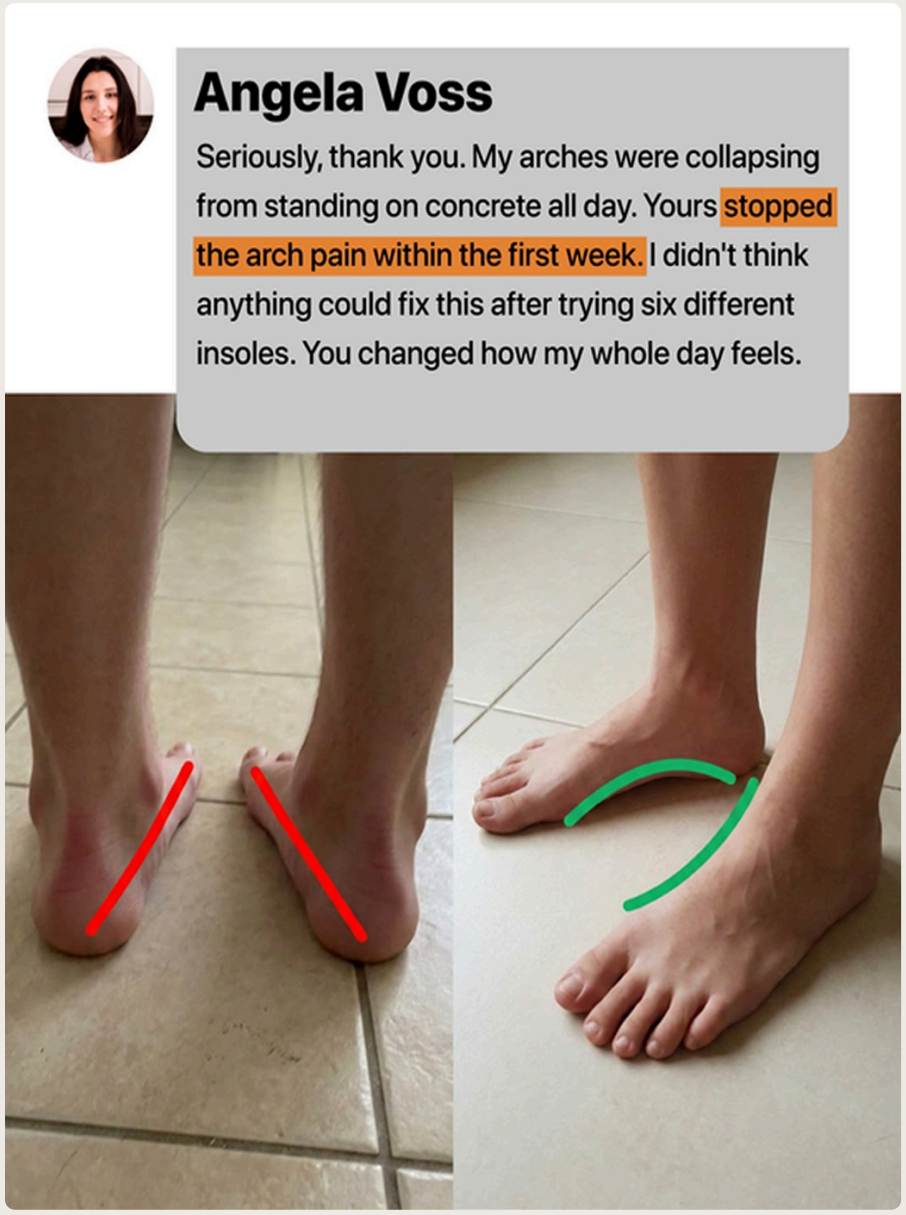

PRODUCT

Protein bar brand: 'We have to be honest about our first batches. We used maltitol as our sweetener. It bloated every customer who tried them. We reformulated with monk fruit and allulose. It took 6 months and cost us Rs 9L. We think you will taste the difference immediately.'

SERVICE

Digital marketing agency: 'For 3 years we optimized our client campaigns for lowest cost per lead. We were bringing in cheap leads that never converted. We were measuring the wrong thing entirely. Here is the attribution model we now use that ties every rupee to actual closed revenue.'

FORMAT 18

The Diagnostic Overlay

Overlaying simple colored lines on a real phone photo communicates instant clinical diagnosis without a word of copy. Red identifies the problem visually. Green shows the correction. The viewer understands the message before reading a single sentence.

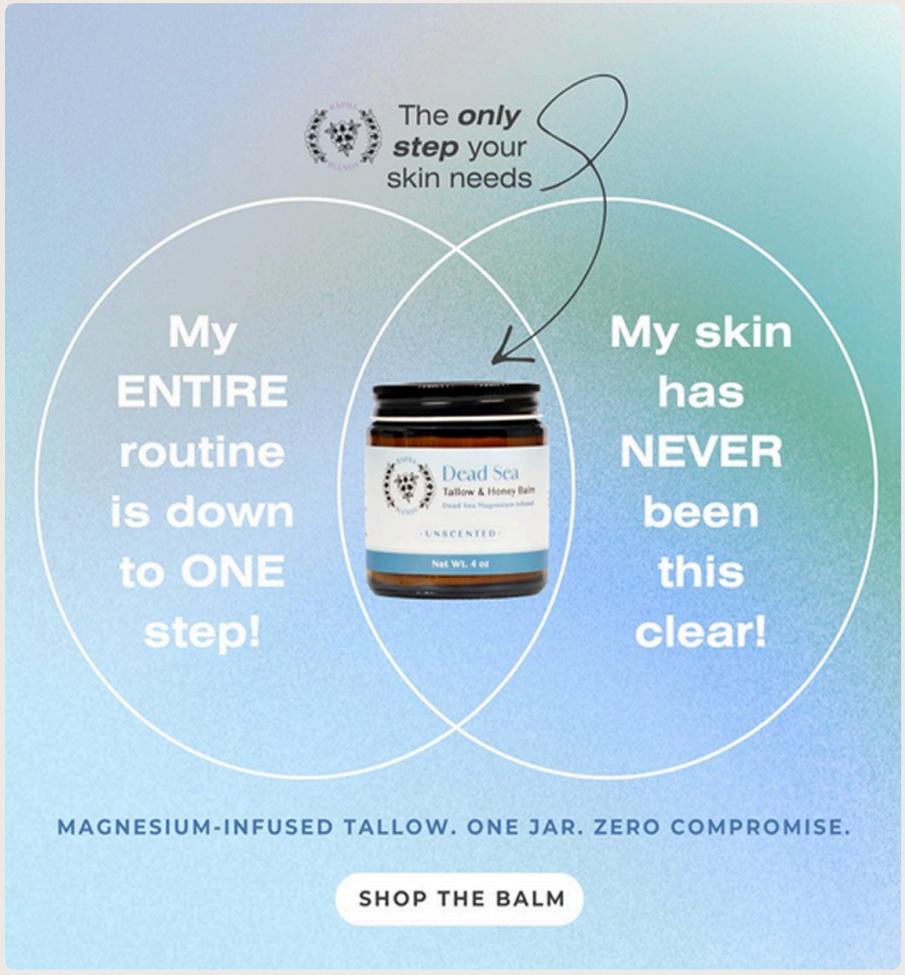

PRODUCT

Posture corrector brace: Real photo of a person seated at a desk. Red line drawn over rolled shoulders and jutting chin. Green line showing neutral spine alignment with ears stacked over shoulders. Single line of copy: 'Your back pain starts here.'

SERVICE

Website audit service: Screenshot of a homepage hero section. Red line pointing to a vague tagline with no clear customer outcome. Green line on a rewritten headline that names a specific result. Copy: 'This one change increased time-on-page by 2.4 minutes in our last 8 client audits.'

FORMAT 19

The Venn Diagram

A Venn diagram reduces a complex value proposition to undeniable visual logic. Two desirable attributes that rarely coexist in the same product become immediately credible when your brand occupies the center overlap. Simple to produce, immediately persuasive.

PRODUCT

Stainless steel water bottle: Left circle: Keeps drinks cold for 36 hours. Right circle: Fits standard car cup holders and backpack side pockets. Center overlap: Our 650ml narrow-mouth insulated bottle.

SERVICE

Copywriting agency: Left circle: Writes with SEO keyword depth that ranks. Right circle: Actually sounds like a real person wrote it. Center overlap: Our writers are trained in both. No robotic keyword stuffing, no invisible content.

FORMAT 20

The Mechanism Breakdown

Anatomical and structural diagrams trigger authority immediately. They reveal the hidden mechanism behind a chronic problem, shifting the viewer from feeling hopeless to understanding their issue as something mechanical and fixable.

PRODUCT

Compression knee sleeve: Cross-section diagram showing how lateral knee tracking misalignment causes repeated patella friction, and how graduated lateral compression guides the joint back into neutral tracking with every step.

SERVICE

Email deliverability consultant: Diagram showing how a cold domain without DKIM, SPF, and DMARC authentication gets routed directly to spam folders, compared to a warmed domain with proper records that lands consistently in primary inboxes.

FORMAT 21

The 4-Panel Comic Strip

Comic panels pull the eye through a story sequence without effort. Four frames showing problem, frustration, discovery, and relief keep viewers reading until the resolution. The format feels playful, not promotional.

PRODUCT

Compact travel adapter: Panel 1 shows a packed suitcase ready to go. Panel 2 shows a hotel room wall socket in an incompatible format. Panel 3 shows a small universal adapter pulled from a jacket pocket. Panel 4 shows laptop, phone, and camera all charging simultaneously.

SERVICE

Virtual assistant agency: Panel 1 shows a founder buried in a full inbox. Panel 2 shows a missed callback notification from a major client. Panel 3 shows the founder briefing a VA on inbox and calendar management. Panel 4 shows the founder on a sales call with zero missed follow-ups flagged.

FORMAT 22

The Timeline Journey

Uncertainty is the most common reason people do not buy. A clear vertical timeline replaces vague promises with a specific ordered schedule. Knowing what happens at Day 1, Week 2, and Month 3 removes anxiety and makes the outcome feel real and achievable.

PRODUCT

Intermittent fasting app: Day 1 shows personalized eating window set up. Week 1 shows hunger spikes stabilizing and sleep improving. Month 1 shows average loss of 2 to 4kg, improved morning energy, and reduced afternoon cravings.

SERVICE

PR and media outreach agency: Month 1 shows 4 tailored media pitches sent to relevant journalists. Month 2 shows one confirmed feature article going live, generating 300 to 500 referral website visits. Month 3 shows 2 inbound enquiries from readers who found the business through the press coverage.

FORMAT 23

The Incoming Call Screen

A smartphone incoming call screen triggers a binary reflex: accept or decline. Labeling the caller as the customer's recurring problem forces an active mental choice. The contrast between the two options does the selling without a single persuasive sentence.

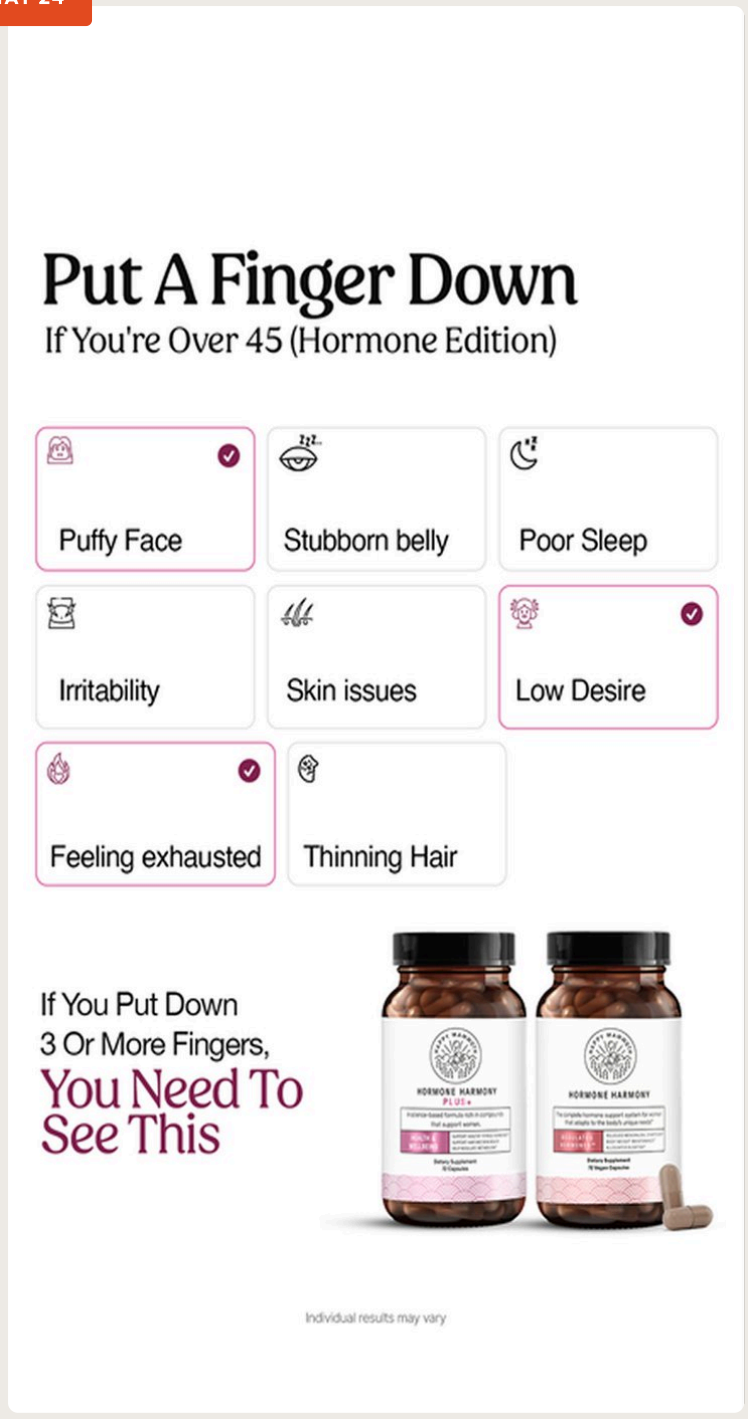

PRODUCT

Noise-cancelling earbuds: Caller shown as 'Your Open Office Distraction'. Decline: Another day losing 3 hours to ambient noise, colleagues stopping by, and broken focus. Accept: Earbuds in, deep work session begins, done by noon.

SERVICE

Automated bookkeeping software: Caller shown as 'Your March Tax Deadline'. Decline: Scramble through shoeboxes of receipts, guess at categories, overpay. Accept: Books automatically reconciled all year. Accountant gets clean files in one click.

FORMAT 24

The Self-Diagnosis Checklist

A checklist turns ad viewing into an interactive self-audit. When readers tick off 3 or 4 symptoms from their own daily experience, they diagnose themselves as the right person for your solution. Self-identification is always more powerful than a targeting claim.

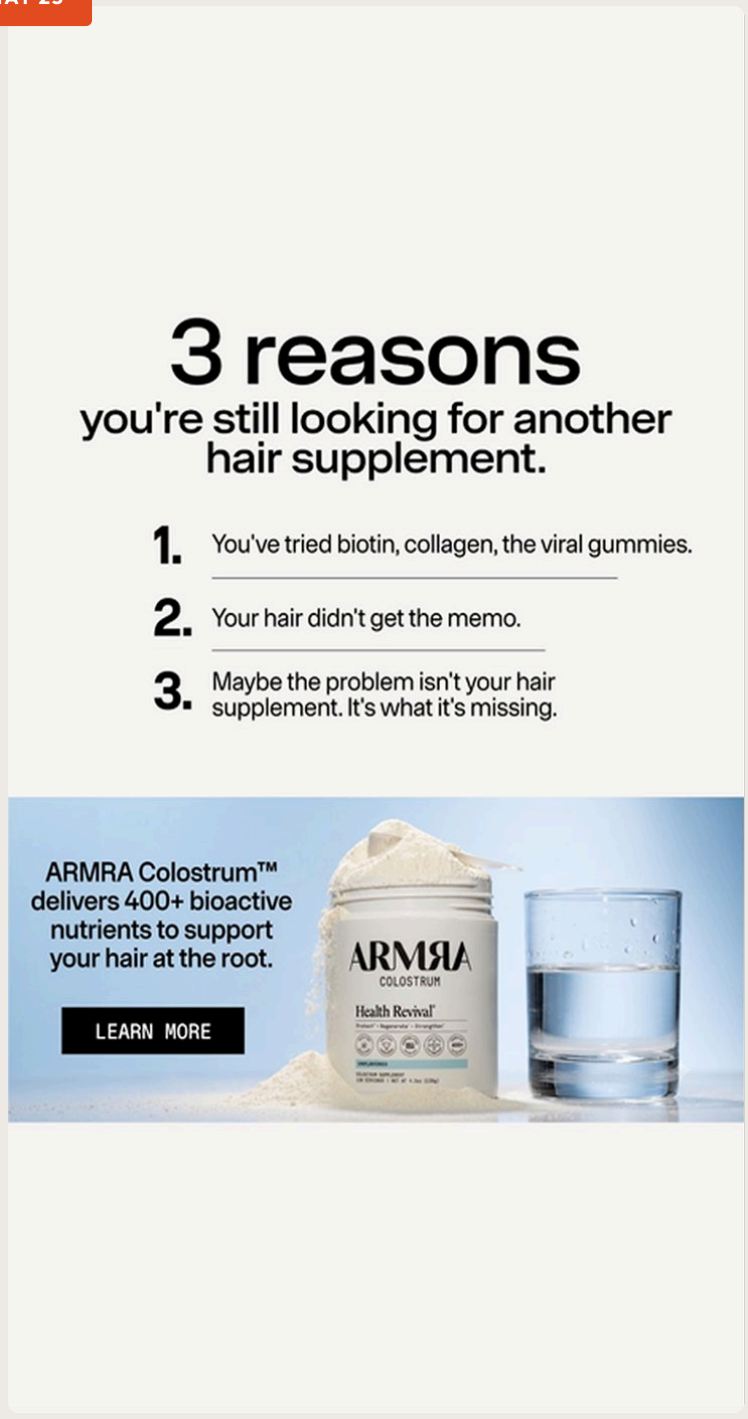

PRODUCT

Magnesium supplement: Checklist reads 'You probably need magnesium if: You wake up between 2 and 4am without knowing why. You get random eye twitches. You crave chocolate frequently. Your muscles cramp after exercise.' Below: 'Four out of four? Your cells are running low.'

SERVICE

Operations consultant: Checklist reads 'Your business needs systems if: You re-explain the same process to every new hire. Client follow-ups get missed because nobody owns them. You cannot take a week off without checking in daily. Your team asks you questions you have already answered three times.' Below: 'This is an operations problem, not a people problem.'

FORMAT 25

The 3 Reasons Breakdown

When people have tried multiple solutions and failed, they become deeply skeptical. This format works by explaining why previous attempts did not work. It shifts blame away from the customer and positions your specific mechanism as the missing variable they have not tried yet.

PRODUCT

Acne treatment serum: Headline: '3 reasons your acne keeps coming back after clearing up.' 1. You are treating the surface but not the excess sebum production underneath. 2. Your moisturizer contains pore-blocking ingredients you have not identified. 3. Stress hormones are triggering a cycle your cleanser cannot reach.

SERVICE

Cold email agency: Headline: '3 reasons your cold emails get zero replies.' 1. You open with your company name and the recipient has no reason to care yet. 2. You pitch your offer in the first message before building any curiosity. 3. You are emailing 2,000 people at random instead of 60 perfectly fitted accounts with a specific reason to reach out.

FORMAT 26

The Billboard Mockup

An outdoor billboard in an urban environment communicates scale, investment, and establishment. Placing a provocative single-line statement on a realistic city billboard mockup lends real-world stature to digital direct-response copy.

PRODUCT

Plant-based protein brand: Urban billboard reads 'Everyone said pick two: high protein, great taste, no bloating. We found all three.' Nothing else except the product name in small text at the bottom.

SERVICE

Virtual CFO service: Financial district billboard reads 'Growing revenue but still stressed about making payroll? Your cash flow is the problem, not your topline.' One phone number below.

FORMAT 27

The Two Buttons Meme

Memes are the native language of social feeds. The sweating-to-choose-between-two-buttons format instantly visualizes a painful real dilemma with humor. Zero corporate stiffness, maximum relatability, and it spreads organically beyond your paid reach.

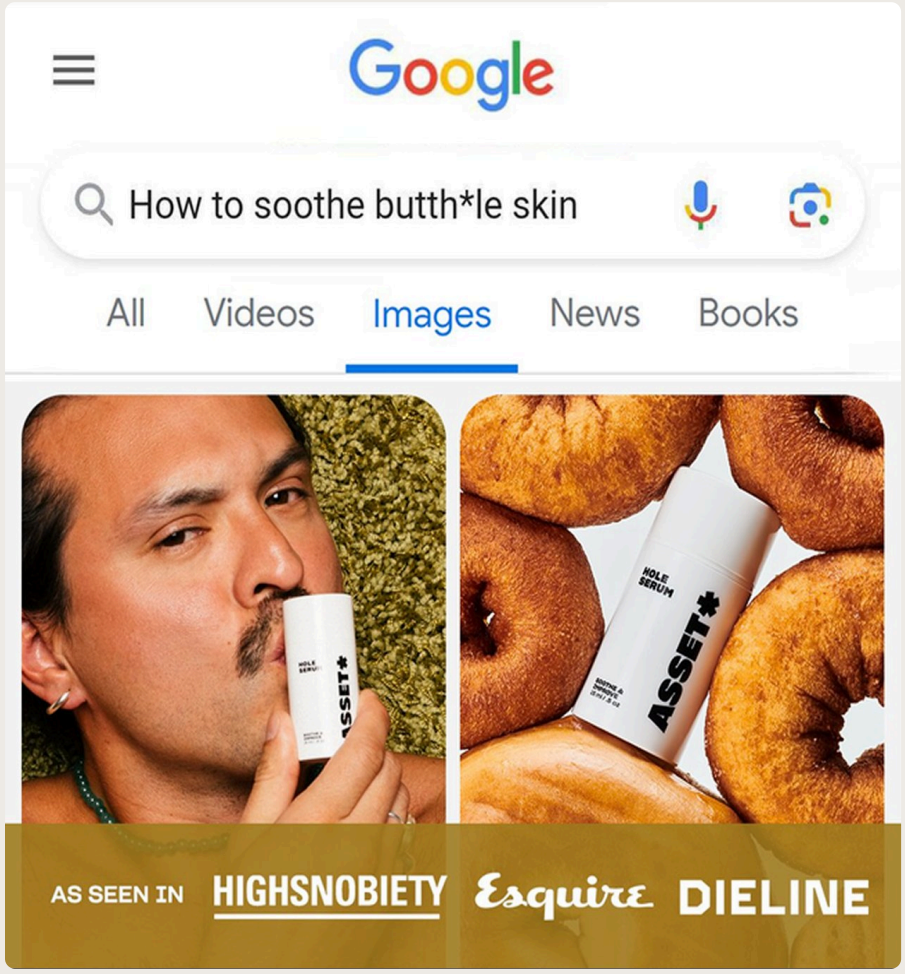

PRODUCT

Cable management kit: Left button reads 'Untangle the same cable disaster behind your desk every single Monday morning.' Right button reads 'Spend 25 minutes once with a cable kit and forget it exists forever.' Figure is visibly sweating at the left button.

SERVICE

Legal contract templates for freelancers: Left button reads 'Pay a lawyer Rs 12,000 every time you need a new client agreement.' Right button reads 'Buy the template pack once, customize in 8 minutes, use it for every client forever.' Figure is sweating at the left button.

FORMAT 28

The Google Image Grid + Press

Combining a Google Image search result for your product category with recognized publication logos delivers two layers of validation at once: consumer popularity and editorial endorsement. Both audiences vouching simultaneously is more credible than either one alone.

PRODUCT

Cold brew coffee concentrate: Search bar shows 'best cold brew coffee to make at home'. Image grid shows the product with review screenshots, paired with logos from Bon Appetit and Condé Nast Traveler and brief quoted praise from each.

SERVICE

Executive coaching program: Search shows 'best leadership development for startup founders'. Grid shows program testimonials and results alongside logos from Forbes and Inc.com with cropped article headline screenshots visible.

FORMAT 29

The Value Stack

Displaying an entire bundle of assets as a high-density visual stack creates an impression of overwhelming value before the price appears. When the total individual value is obvious and large, the actual ask feels disproportionately small by comparison.

PRODUCT

Notion template bundle for content creators: Stack includes content calendar template, brand kit, client tracker, invoice template, and weekly review ritual. Individual value labeled at Rs 8,400. Complete creator bundle shown below at Rs 1,499.

SERVICE

Startup legal document kit: Stack shows founders agreement, IP assignment deed, advisor agreement, NDA template, and term sheet guide. Lawyer would charge Rs 1.1L for all five. Complete kit price shown at Rs 4,999.

FORMAT 30

The Founder Milestone Selfie

A casual phone selfie celebrating a real business milestone creates immediate personal connection. Customers support real people reaching real numbers far more readily than faceless brands running polished campaign shoots.

PRODUCT

Handcrafted candle brand: Founder photographed in their studio surrounded by inventory with caption: '10,000 candles hand-poured since 2021. Still using the same small-batch formula we made in our kitchen. Thank you for making this real.'

SERVICE

Career coaching program: Founder smiling with a printed milestone graphic in hand: '50 clients placed into roles they actually wanted. Average salary increase: Rs 4.8 lakh. Most of them had applied to the same jobs alone and been rejected before we worked together.'

FORMAT 31

The Split-Screen Chat

Placing customer anxiety on the left in a familiar messaging layout and a direct resolution on the right turns a before-and-after story into something the viewer reads like a conversation. The format requires almost no explanation because the structure does all the work.

PRODUCT

Probiotic supplement: Left message: 'I have tried every probiotic and my bloating always comes back after 2 weeks.' Right message: 'Most probiotics use strains that die in stomach acid before reaching your gut. Our delayed-release capsule delivers 25 billion CFU exactly where it needs to go.'

SERVICE

Social media consultant: Left message: 'I post 4 times a week and my follower count has not moved in 5 months.' Right message: 'Frequency is not your problem. Your content is trying to speak to everyone, which means it resonates with no one. The positioning needs to change first.'

The Mix & Match System

Every format in this vault is a combination of three variables: a visual container, a content type, and a hook style. You do not need 30 new ideas. You need one from each column. Change any single variable and you have a brand new ad that your audience has never seen.

VISUAL CONTAINER

- Notes app screenshot
- Google search bar
- Reddit thread
- WhatsApp group exit
- Phone call screen
- ChatGPT prompt
- Email screenshot
- Whiteboard photo
- Fridge note
- Comic strip panels

CONTENT TYPE

- Direct audience callout
- Problem and solution reveal
- Social proof wall
- Before vs after comparison
- 3 reasons you are still struggling
- Value stack reveal
- Day-by-day timeline
- Brand confession or apology
- Self-diagnosis checklist

HOOK STYLE

- Identity ('If you are a...')
- Pain ('Still dealing with...')
- Curiosity ('What most people miss...')
- Results ('I went from X to Y...')
- Authority ('3 reasons why...')
- Validation ('You are not alone if...')
- Contrast ('Wrong vs Right')
- Urgency ('Before you do this again...')

NOTES APP + 3 REASONS + PAIN HOOK

A Notes screenshot titled '3 reasons my acne kept coming back' lists the real root causes before introducing the solution. Feels like a personal realization, not an ad.

REDDIT THREAD + SOCIAL PROOF + CURIOSITY HOOK

A Reddit post asking 'Does X actually work?' with a top-voted comment praising your product builds peer credibility and stops skeptical scrollers cold.

WHATSAPP EXIT + BEFORE/AFTER + RESULTS HOOK

Someone leaves a group called 'Sunday Night Admin Anxiety Club' because they automated their workflow. The exit notification tells the whole story in 8 words.

Your Ad Sprint Protocol

STEP 01

Pick one format that mirrors your customer's exact frustration

Do not pick your favourite format. Open the vault and find the visual container that best matches the exact pain your customer types into Google at midnight. Start there.

STEP 02

Write 3 copy variations in 20 minutes

Same visual container, three different hooks or audiences. Change the callout, the pain angle, or the proof element. Speed matters more than polish at this stage.

STEP 03

Create the visual in under 30 minutes

Screenshot, phone photo, Canva mockup, or a handwritten note. If production takes longer than 30 minutes, it is already too polished. Ugly and fast beats beautiful and slow.

STEP 04

Run it for 48 hours and let the data decide

Spend Rs 1,500 to 3,000 per variation for 48 hours. Kill what gets no clicks. Double the budget on what performs. Repeat the winning format with a new hook next week.

New formats are added to this vault as we test them live. Every format here has generated real results across product and service businesses, not just theory.